CARNIVAL WEEKEND

After an absence of a couple of years the annual Elks Carnival will be resumed in the Coleman Arena Friday and Saturday night. This event, which for years has been the top entertainment of the Pass for the fall season, promises to be equal to any held yet. Proceeds of the function will be devoted to completion of the new Elks Hall, which in itself will be a boon to Coleman.

Members of the lodge have been busy for the past week arranging for the various events and have come up with such features as Glass Pitch, Hoop-La, Darts, Bingo, Crown and Anchor. Each night at 9, 10 and 11 the Giant Bingo will be featured. Bring your crayons and pencils to mark your cards for this event.

The Elks have in the past been very active in charitable work around Coleman and are at present time converting the former X-L building into a lodge hall.

Your support of the Elks Carnival will be supporting Coleman.

Hunters Active In Area

The opening of sheep and goat season last week saw local hunters taking to the hills. Within a few days of the opening date reports stated that more hunters than ever had gone into the Kananaskis country.

Reports reaching The Journal at the end of the week stated that Teddy Michalski and Joe Pauvile and Ray Campbell of Bellevue had each bagged a goat, while two other Bellevue men had shot rams.

Alberta's closed season on the shooting of deer and moose is continued this year under 1954 big game hunting regulations announced recently by E. S. Huestis, provincial fish and game commissioner. The new regulations include provisions for shooting of migratory and upland birds.

The shooting of deer and moose was prohibited for the 1953 season and officials said they find no reason to lift the ban for the current period.

The season for mountain sheep and goats will be open for September and October. For elk, the season will be open for November and December. The bag limits are one male mountain sheep for the season, one goat, male or female, and one male elk, except that in the region south of the Crownsnest and west of the no. 2 highway there is a choice of one male or one female elk.

The shooting of one grizzly, one black or brown or cinnamon bear also is permitted between Sept. 1 and December 31.

For the first time the regulations also permit that one may take or kill big game by the use of bow and arrow. This prohibition was taken out of the Game Act at the last session of the legislature.

The open season for migratory birds, such as ducks and geese, is from Sept. 13 to Dec. 4, inclusive, except that for Wilson's snipe the season extends from Sept. 18 to Oct. 6. Daily bag limit is eight ducks and five geese and the possession limit 32 ducks and 10 geese.

Under the new regulations, the season for shooting all upland birds will be open from Oct. 18 to Nov. 20 inclusive, throughout the province. This includes sharp-tailed grouse, commonly known as prairie chicken, ruffed grouse, spruce partridge, Hungarian partridge, ring-necked cock pheasants. One blue grouse and ptarmigan, the season will be open from Sept. 1 to Sept. 30.

This year the shooting of cock pheasants will not be permitted before 10 a.m., a restoration of the regulation in effect two years ago. Last year it was permissible to shoot these birds from half an hour before sunrise to half an hour after sunset. The bag limit on all upland birds is five a day.

Due to circumstances beyond our control some of the type scheduled for this week did not arrive here by press time.

Council Holds Regular Session

Coleman Council met in regular session Tuesday night dispensing with regular business and discussing matters that face the town at the present time.

Perhaps the most important matter of the evening was the report of Fire Chief Montabetti in regards the local volunteer fire brigade. Mr. Montabetti stated that the brigade boasted of 12 members at the present, enough for a call, but was faced with the problem of no firemen living in the fire hall. This meant that when Town Foreman Malanchuk was away from home the building was empty, no one available to take fire calls. To ask Mr. Malanchuk to remain in the building at all times would not be fair, but someone must be obtained to take up residence and be available for receiving calls.

Giving a man a room is not enough the chief stated, — other centres providing more incentive to men. He felt that addition of light housekeeping facilities in the rooms might make it easier to obtain men.

Council discussed the matter thoroughly, realizing the danger that they were confronted with, and the need for them to rectify the situation at the earliest. Suggestions of hiring a town hall janitor to do this work, providing housekeeping facilities and making arrangements with the telephone company to sound the alarm were all considered. It was finally decided to advertise for men as the first step.

Sidewalks came in for discussion next, council deciding that holes in the pavement on main street should be fixed and the section from Red & White to the Modern Electric looked at. It was agreed that drainage on this section caused damage for stores and proved to be dangerously icy during winter months.

Councillor Bond brought up the matter of the rock cut on the main highway again pointing out that it constituted a danger, motorists having to pull out past the stop sign to see if cars were approaching from the east. He was informed that the government had been notified and agreed that the cut was too narrow. They will inform council if and when they decide what is to be done.

Consideration of unemployed men working for the town came under council's scrutiny next with discussion as to what projects remained to be done. It was brought out that irresponsible remarks had been made around town as to the manner in which the work was being handled. Council have directed this campaign in a manner that provides the best for the people not for the advantage of one person. Consideration has been given to families that were without any visible means of income at the time and to men that could not pass a medical examination for other work. Any persons desiring to work for the town under this plan must leave his name at the office and await his time to get an equal share.

Speeding popped up again at this meeting with the report that the removal of a stop sign in West Coleman and replacing it with school signs has resulted in speeding in that area. One report stated that a truck and two cars had been noticed racing in this section.

Councillor Bond of the Parks committee reported that the Lions Club were anxious to obtain soil from the area back of the corrals. Council felt that this land was under the jurisdiction of the Sport Association and therefore the decision must come from them.

However, they felt that should the area be under their control, they would prefer to see the soil obtained from some other area.

THEATRE NOTES

"Elephant Walk"

Peter Finch inherits Elephant Walk, vast tea plantation established in Ceylon by his late father. To the mansion built right across a path travelled by elephants—Finch brings his bride, Elizabeth Taylor, the only white woman among a society of heavy drinking planters. Dominated by the spirit of his strong-willed father, Finch neglects his wife and things go from bad to worse. She and Dana Andrews, the plantation overseer are mutually attracted, and Elizabeth informs her husband that she and Andrews are going away together. They are prevented from leaving, however, by an outbreak of cholera. Then the elephants stampede and bring ruin to the plantation. As Elizabeth sees Finch calmly making plans for the rebuilding she gains new respect; for him; he in turn shakes off his parental domination and they are reconciled.

"Dial 'M' for Murder"

By means of a blackmail threat Ray Milland forces Anthony Dawson, an old acquaintance, to participate in a plot whereby Dawson is to murder Milland's wife, Grace Kelly, whom Milland had married for her money, and who is now in love with Robert Cummings, an American writer. The plan goes awry, however, when Grace slays the attacking Dawson with a pair of scissors and kills him. Hastily Milland concocts evidence to make the slaying look like premeditated murder on Grace's part. She is tried, convicted and sentenced to be executed. Cummings, however, suspects Milland and accuses him of plotting Grace's death. The police also think Milland guilty, and set a careful trap by which they hope to catch him. Milland makes the expected mistake thus incriminating himself, and Grace is free to begin a new life with Cummings.

"Here Come the Girls"

Bob Hope, the world's oldest chorus boy, completely wrecks the tryout of a musical revue in Jersey City in the year 1900. When Arlene Dahl, (star of the show) has Hope thrown out he is comforted by Rosemary Clooney, one of the chorus girls, who really loves him. The attempted murder of Tony Martin, the leading man, causes a police investigation, and they learn that a mad killer is determined to assassinate anyone who makes love to Arlene. To protect Martin, the management persuades Hope to play the male lead, hoping that the killer will be fooled. When the killer is captured, Hope is again fired, but just as soon is re-hired when the killer escapes. On opening night Hope is bungling up the show, as usual, when knives start flying at him. When the killer is caught Hope is kept on as a star, but is too timid to make his appearance.

R. A. Montalbetti, Prop.

Albina Soroff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Soroff of Coleman, and Rinaldo P. Reghinas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ettore Reghinas, of Natal, were married recently in the Holy Ghost Church in Coleman. Rev. Father McGreevy officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Escorted by her father the bride wore a white nylon net and lace gown with beaded tiara and finger-tip veil of illusion net. She carried a cascade of white gladi-oil and red roses.

Mrs. Julla Soroff was matron of honor, ushered by Mr. Pete Halsan.

Olga Horbachuk, maid of honor, and Anne Saloff attended the bride, wearing green and yellow gowns respectively, and carried colonial bouquets. Flower girl was Gail Reghinas, sister of the groom, gown in mauve net.

Best man was Peter Reghinas, and Ken Weaver also attending the groom.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother wore a white figured nylon dress and navy accessories, and wore a corsage of red carnations.

The groom's mother chose a pink dress of nylon net with white accessories and wore a deep pink rose corsage.

For going away the bride chose a mauve suit with white accessories. Following a short trip to points in the U. S. A. the couple will reside in Kimberley where the groom is on the staff of the

J. J. McKim high school.

Out of town guests were from Seattle, Vernon, Salmo, Calgary, Michel and Natal.

NEW CALENDAR? —

This new calendar, says The Financial Post, has been planned for many years but not until the Vatican indicated approval in principle a few weeks ago was there much hope of widespread acceptance. Now the United Nations has taken up the idea and the views of all established governments are to be sought.

To make the transition smooth, a year would have to be elected where the first day of the present calendar falls on a Sunday. That would be in 1961.

Main advantages claimed for the reformed calendar are simplicity and regularity. Quarters would be identical and dates would fall on the same week day each year. July 1 for example would always come on a Sunday, May 24 on a Friday and Christmas on a Monday.

There would be four months, January, April, July, and October of 31 days each. All others would have 30 days. The extra day, February 29 in a leap year and the present 365th would be called wordsdays, and designated general holidays.
